Economic Empowerment

We envision businesses led by Peace Promise that create opportunities for the women we serve. Change Purse and Soaps By Survivors are just the beginning of our economic empowerment vision. The women we serve possess unlimited potential. Through employment opportunities that are safe, rewarding and provide financially for their families, they are equipped to pursue futures filled with freedom and dignity.

Our Vision

Peace Promise accomplishes its work through a volunteer team of committed and dedicated individuals who represent many different faith communities located throughout Cumberland, Dauphin and York Counties. On a weekly basis, Peace Promise Outreach Volunteers visit adult entertainment venues forming friendships with the women who work there.

We envision transformed lives filled with endless opportunities, meaningful relationships, and enduring peace, while stewarding a promise to future generations to remain increasingly aware of and actively engaged in confronting the distortion of our hyper-sexualized culture.

The dancers affectionately refer to the outreach volunteers as the “church ladies” who bring homemade dinners and desserts to share during the visits. Outreach volunteers communicate a simple message: “You are precious. You are valued. You are loved. We are here for you.”

Once a survivor is safely transitioned out of the industry, Peace Promise offers an individually customized care plan based on that woman’s specific needs and goals. The plan is intended to facilitate meaningful employment, healthy relationships and loving self-care.

Outreach & Intervention

We build relationships on a weekly basis with women who are being exploited in the commercial sex industry. Through care and trust-building, we become “somebody” to women who feel they have nobody. Our lives become intertwined with their lives through friendship, offering them true kinship and hope for the future.

Education & Awareness

Peace Promise seeks to impact the hyper-sexualized culture with messages of healthy sexuality and by humanizing the people exploited through pornography, stripping and prostitution. We speak in schools, at college campuses, at churches and to community groups. We bring stories of real people to those we educate to help them see the whole person and not just objectified bodies. We believe everyone has a role in shifting the current culture.

Support & Training

Life skills are a significant part of what we do. We address practical needs first and foremost, followed by employment support, transportation, counseling, legal services and daily life skills education. We provide opportunities necessary for the women to have long term success in regard to their financial, personal and spiritual life. We do life with the women we serve.
